

Theron “T” Bowman

Theron L. Bowman began his law enforcement career in 1983 as an officer with the Arlington (TX) Police Department, and served in numerous positions before being appointed chief of police in 1999. He received three degrees from the University of Texas at Arlington, a Bachelor’s Degree in Biology, a Master’s Degree in Public Administration, and a Doctorate in Urban and Public Administration. He is also a graduate of the FBI National Academy, the FBI National Executive Institute, and the Senior Management Institute for Police. Currently, he serves as a Commissioner for The Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, chair of the North Texas Super Bowl XLV Regional Public Safety Executive Committee and of the Texas Intelligence Council. He is a member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, where he serves on the Executive Committee, Financial Review Committee, Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Committee, and the IACP Foundation.

In 2006, he created and led an internal workgroup that explored and later created a statistically significant predictive geospatial algorithm that accurately explained more than seventy percent of residential burglaries in a city of 370,000 people. Dr. Bowman is a popular speaker who addresses all age groups. He has served as a lecturer, instructor, adjunct professor and visiting fellow for several colleges and universities. He is a Deacon in his affiliated church, serves on numerous community advisory boards, and has several publications and professional reports to his credit. The John Ben Shepperd Public Leadership Institute presented Dr. Bowman with the Outstanding Local Leader Award, the Police Executive Research Forum presented Dr. Bowman with the Gary P. Hayes Award and he received the Distinguished Alumni Award from UT Arlington. He and his wife, Denise, and three children live in Arlington. They co-own and operate several private ventures, including a popular Fort Worth restaurant.
